

“I noticed a nice house by the river bank under the roots of a fine willow tree, with the door on the latch, so I pushed the door open, very quiet like . . . I wanted to see who lived within, and the kind of furniture they had . . .”

It has been said that our home is our castle. Certainly a home is a place of refuge but it is also a place for entertainment, for relaxation and a base from which our children eventually create their own homes. It must therefore be right to spend time and trouble to make our homes beautiful and comfortable.

There is one group of companies above all others that can help to make this investment rewarding and satisfying and that is the Parker Knoll Group.

The purpose of this booklet is to demonstrate that the Parker Knoll Group has a broader range of furniture and fabrics than you may have realised. By its close attention to quality and service Parker Knoll can do more than any other company to help you choose the furnishings to suit your own individual taste and pocket.

The founders of the Parker Knoll Group were interested principally in quality. A collection of period chairs, started by Frederick Parker and continued by his sons in their lifetime, remains one of the finest in Europe and sets an example of the standards still maintained by the Group today. Perhaps it is appropriate, therefore, if we start this little booklet, which illustrates some of the Group's products, with examples of Parker Knoll Furniture.

Parker Knoll

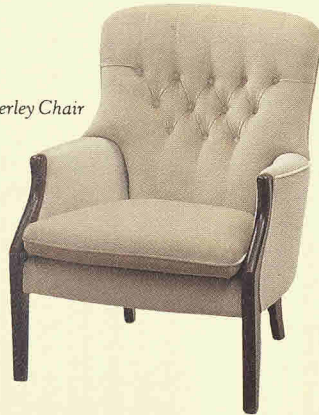

No one cares more for your comfort.

With over 100 years' experience, it's no surprise that Parker Knoll have a remarkable reputation for comfort and quality and although we are justly proud of our past, we are constantly developing our range to suit the modern home. G.P. & J. Baker fine prints, with their coordinating wallpapers and weaves create a unique atmosphere.

The company was formed in 1884 by the brothers George Percival and James Baker who collected fragments of textiles and wallpapers from the East, Europe and the Americas. Today the Baker Studio carefully interpret these original designs into the most beautiful range of fabrics printed on cotton, chintzes, unions, twills and linens, all finely produced in the Baker tradition.
