CONTEXT
Biographical History:
Gertrude Tuckwell (1861-1951) was a trade union organiser and campaigner for Women’s rights. In 1891 she became involved with the Women’s Trade Union League (WTUL), working as its secretary and editor of its journal, the Women’s Trade Union Review before becoming president of the League in 1905. In 1908 she also became president of the National Federation of Women Workers (NFWW) which had been founded in 1906 through the WTUL. She remained active in both organisations until 1918 when she announced her retirement and withdrew effectively from January 1921 when the League merged its work with that of the Trades Union Congress (TUC). Tuckwell also became involved in the struggle for protective legislation in the international arena as she joined the executive committee of the International Association for Labour Legislation in 1906. She also maintained the Christian Socialist tradition of her family (her father was widely known as “the radical parson”) and from 1898 became secretary of the Christian Social Union Research Committee.

Custodial history
The file folders, which form the greater part of this Collection, are thought to have been deposited with the Trades Union Congress in 1921, along with other records from the Women’s Trade Union League. The blue despatch box, containing the personal papers and other material, was deposited in the late 1950s after her death.

CONTENT AND STRUCTURE
Accruals: no further deposits are expected
Arrangement:
The main part of the collection covers her period with the WTUL (c.1890-1921) and includes both printed material (press cuttings, pamphlets and reports) and manuscript material (correspondence and notes). The subjects cover the whole range of contemporary issues relating to Women’s political and employment rights, including anti-sweating campaigns, trade union organisation, health and safety in factories and workshops, Labour Party and Cooperative Movement activities, suffrage campaigns, and issues relating to women at work during World War 1. In addition to the main set of papers, there is a typescript of Reminiscences (her unpublished autobiography), files of correspondence, articles, photographs and personal papers dating 1907-1958, and two printed monographs.
The main set of papers had been arranged by subject and stored in folders marked with a general descriptive heading and number. This arrangement has been retained, although some large items which were being damaged by folding have been removed and stored flat and this is indicated on the list with an asterisk (*) by the file title. The reference numbers indicate which box these papers originate from. The file contents are loose but there are security numbers on each item to ensure that the order is retained and nothing is lost or wrongly filed.
The original titles have been expanded so that the contents of each file is described and details given of individual publications. In the cases of some files there is added detail about the subject matter, this information has been taken from an earlier list which gave this extra information in some cases and not others. No information on subject content has been extracted during this latest listing.

Key words for personal, place and corporate names are indicated for each file. A number of issues had to be considered when compiling these key word entries-

- personal names: It would have been impractical to give entries for every individual mentioned in the text so only those people who can be identified as important figures in the labour or Women’s movement have been included and larger political figures have been omitted unless they were crucial to a certain issue or event eg Churchill and National Insurance. Where a cutting reports a long debate over a bill, only the main speaker has been included, generally the MP introducing the proposed legislation.

- corporate names: It has not been possible to include every trade union or organisation, particularly the local ones. Where a society is the local branch of a national organisation, the national name has been included and an entry for the place added. Some local societies have been included where they are not part of a wider body or where they play a crucial part in a specific dispute or issue.

- place names: It has not always been possible to index subdistricts of towns and counties (except where they have a branch of a society, union etc.) and only the name of the larger town or county has been included.

The key word entries have been compiled with reference to the National Council of Archives Rules for the Construction of Personal, Place and Corporate Names, 1997. However, these rules indicate that dates and qualifiers should be added when key words are used for access points. Due to time limitations it has not been possible to include these in this list. For the same reason, it has not been possible to check personal, place and corporate names against established authority files.

ACCESS CONDITIONS

Legal Status: Rules for access are as in the TUC Library Collections Rules (copies available)

Physical condition: Due to the poor quality of the paper used, the press cuttings are very fragile and care should be used with handling. Some of the large ones which have been folded are particularly bad and in places have crumbled and lost text. In these cases the use of microfilm should be preferred to prevent further damage by handling and in order to see missing text. The edges of the papers are also brittle and liable to tear where strain has been placed on them and they have become ragged from upright storage.

Finding aids: There is a paper list in the library and also a copy in the National Register of Archives with the HMC. There is also a microfilm version of the collection held in the library which is also available in other repositories.

ALLIED MATERIALS

Associated material: The records and publications of the Women’s Trade Union League are held in the TUC Library Collections.

A microfilm edition of this Collection is currently distributed by Primary Source Microfilm (Gale Group). The location if each file in the microfilm edition is shown in the entry eg Box 5, reel 3.
